New EQIPP Course

Substance Use - Screening, Brief Intervention, Referral to Treatment

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that pediatricians be familiar with adolescent substance use screening, brief intervention, and referral to treatment (SBIRT). Adolescents are the age group at greatest risk of experiencing substance use–related acute and chronic health consequences and, as such, also are most likely to derive the greatest benefit from universal SBIRT.

EQIPP stands for Education in Quality Improvement for Pediatric Practice. This course will help you identify and close gaps in your practice related to SBIRT using practical tools while earning continuing medical education credit and meeting Part 4 (performance in practice) maintenance of certification credits all at once.

Throughout this course you will complete various work online and offline. You will make plans for improvement to address gaps identified in key clinical activities related to SBIRT. Collect baseline and follow-up data while working to improve care and processes through Plan, Do, Study, and Act (PDSA) cycles.

Opportunity for Non-AAP Members!
Don’t miss out! For a limited time, the first 100 non-members will get complimentary access to this new course! That’s a $199 value!
